Jury deadlocked, mistrial declared

By RICH ADAMS

Alan King Brenske, jury foreman in the murder trial of Charles E. (Chuck) Depreo, told Judge Leslie B. Grant Saturday afternoon the jury could not reach a verdict.

"Your honor, the jury cannot reach a decision," Brenske announced following a three-hour deliberation by the jury.

The jury filed into a silent, tense courtroom at 3:35 p.m. Saturday as spectators sat anxiously awaiting an outcome of the week-long trial to determine if Depreo was guilty of the April slaying of Janice Ladner in Kiln.

"Does this mean the jury desires more time," asked Grant.

"No your honor, we don't need any more time," Brenske replied.

"Then I declare a mistrial," announced Grant.

Spectators that had waited in the crowded courtroom since early Saturday morning remained silent as District Attorney Albert Necaise requested another trial date during the January term of Circuit Court.

"We've got a win," said Defense Attorney James E. Atchison following the trial.

"The state threw everything they had against us, and there was no conviction even with a confession," Atchison continued.

"When we go to court in January, I'll have more to offer in evidence now that I know what the state has to offer," added the lawyer.

Lawmen from Sheriff Sylvan Ladner's office appeared stunned after the trial was over, seeming to almost be in a state of shock over the outcome.

"I'm terribly disappointed. I guess everybody in law enforcement who was connected with this case is very disappointed too," Hancock County Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson said after the jury returned its finding.

Peterson, who was among the principal investigators of the Janice Ladner murder, said, "We all felt we had a secure case, but I guess we'll just have to come back in January and try again."

Judge Grant set a second trial date for Depreo on January 22, 1979 in Hancock County Circuit Court.

Atchison asked Judge Grant to lower the $100,000 bond set on April 25 at a preliminary hearing of the case.

"He was not found guilty. We think he is entitled to a lower bond," Atchison told the judge.

Necaise protested the proposal, saying, "We feel the bond is adequate. He is charged with three crimes...murder, aggravated assault, and arson."

"We will reduce the bond to $60,000—$20,000 on each charge," said Grant.

Earl E. (Buck) Ladner, husband of the late Janice Ladner, was sitting in the front row of the spectator section and slammed his fist on the rail when Grant announced the lower bond.

He then stormed to the door of the courtroom and faced the wall.

Atchison met with the Depreo family in a private room off the courtroom following the jury's announcement.

"I feel good," said Eldo Depreo, the defendant's father.

"I'd rather he had gotten out," he added.

Depreo was hurriedly whisked from the courthouse by Mississippi Highway Patrol investigators in an unmarked black squad car.

The car, driven by Investigator Joe Price, headed east on Main Street toward Beach Boulevard.

Peterson said Depreo was again taken to an undisclosed jail.

Highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies maintained a tight security net around the outside of the courthouse Saturday afternoon to insure safe passage of the defendant from the building to the waiting vehicle.

In Saturday's 2.5-hours of closing statements, District Attorney Albert Necaise, Assistant D.A. James Thomas, and Defense Attorney James Atchison gave their final statements to the jury prior to the jury going in to deliberate.

Necaise delivered a dramatic closing statement, asking the jury to give the state a "fair and impartial trial."

"The defendant had an attorney present to say 'I object' when he felt I was out of order," Necaise said in the virtually silent courtroom.

"But I wonder," he continued, "Janice Ladner was in a place she believed to be the safe, secure confines of her home."

"What would have happened if Janice Ladner could have said 'I object' when Chuck Depreo shot her," he asked the jury.

"There was no judge there, and Janice Ladner didn't have a chance to object," Necaise continued dramatically.

"Janice Ladner had to be the defendant as Charles Edward Chuck Depreo acted as the judge. He tried and convicted her. He was the jury, and VICTORY FOR THE DEFENSE—Charles Edward (Chuck) Depreo, 18, of Kiln, who Monday came into the back of the Hancock County Courthouse to face trial on murder, arson and assault charges in connection with the April 9 death of Janice Ladner, wounding of her six-year-old daughter Joy Lynn, and the burning of the Ladner home in Kiln, is whisked under tight security out the front of the Courthouse Saturday afternoon following declaration of a mistrial by Second District Circuit Court Judge Leslie B. Grant. The judge's action came after the 12-member jury announced to the court through its foreman.

Mississippi Astronaut praises NASA progress

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

"If the Orbiter Space Shuttle loses more than one main engine in a flight, NASA loses the vehicle, and in all probability—the crew," explained NASA Astronaut Donald Peterson of Winona, Ms. to employees gathered in the NSTL auditorium Friday.

"NASA is literally hanging the welfare of the crew and the reputation of NASA on the reliable functioning of the main engine, and that's quite a challenge.

"And I think you people here are going to meet that challenge very well, but I want you to understand that you play one of the most important roles in this entire NASA program," exhorted the astronaut.

Peterson spoke to National Space Technology Laboratories employees, and others in conjunction with NASA's 20th anniversary.

The astronaut said he thinks for many Americans, Sputnik really marked the beginning of the 'space age'.

"Man's beginning in space began a long time before Sputnik...however, I think it was Sputnik that set this country on fire to build a really vital space program," asserted Peterson.

"After Sputnik was created, we responded the same way Americans always respond to a crisis," continued Peterson. "We overcame... and started catching up."

NASA has come a long way in 20 years, said Peterson, and now the United States demonstrates American Supremacy in space.

"I remember some of the early program names," recalled Peterson, "like Explorer, Pegasus, Pioneer, Mercury, Gemini, all the way to when Apollo put a man on the moon in 1969."

"NASA has had a wave of successes," exclaimed Peterson, "...yet many people, for example, watch events on television and never realize that NASA satellites are the reason transmission is possible."

Peterson said new objectives of the NASA program are to get away from throwing away objects used in space and to save money, and he thinks NASA has accomplished this with the creation of the Orbiter Space Shuttle Craft.

He said the Space Shuttle in the long run will be NASA's greatest technological development since creation of the program.

He explained that the Shuttle has a cargo bay that will probably be used to carry satellites back to earth.

The Space Shuttle will also be used to study the earth from space, Peterson added, allowing valuable information about pollution, farming and activities in other parts of the world to be obtained.

Peterson said that sleeping in the Space Shuttle will be similar to the way bats sleep.

A great improvement of the Space Shuttle is the private bathroom facility, which didn't exist in other NASA space voyages.

"In the past we didn't have a bathroom and when you had to go to the bathroom it was like going to the bathroom in the front seat of a Volkswagen with two other guys there," said Peterson.

"The Shuttle pretty much has all the comforts of home, but without the space," continued Peterson.

In addition to comforts of home, Peterson said, lower G-Forces or gravitational pull in Orbiters means people not trained for vigorous flights can still be carried in the vehicle as passengers.

In closing, Peterson said he would like to clear up a controversy which surrounds Skylab's return to earth.

"Risk of losing human life from a part of the Skylab falling on someone is about equal to the chance that someone might get struck by lightning," he explained.

A. N. Grass announces candidacy

ALBERT N. GRASS

Veteran Waveland Councilman Albert N. Grass has announced he is a candidate for reelection from Ward Two in the November 7 Democratic Primary.

Grass has been Ward Two Councilman (formerly alderman) for the past 16 years, and has served twice as mayor pro-tem.

He is a member and past officer of the Gulf Coast Municipal Officials' Association, and is a charter member of the Waveland Civic Association.

Grass is semi-retired from Grass and Son Contractors, residential home building firm.

He is married to the former Lillian Feldmann of Waveland. They are the parents of Albert J. Grass of Waveland and Dianne Grass Henry of Slidell, La.

"Mr. and Mrs. Grass have resided at 334 Jeff Davis Avenue for the past 42 years."

"I have devoted the past 16 years to serving the citizens of Waveland, and I would appreciate your vote and influence at this time," Grass said.

"I am sensitive to the growth taking place in our city, and remain alert to any possibility of securing funds for the improvements necessary to insure our area will experience an orderly development," the candidate added.

'NSTL facility truly great,' says Senator

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

U.S. Senator John Stennis described his tour of the NSTL site in Bay St. Louis Thursday as, "real fun."

"I'm at NSTL today because I want to see preparations for the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant that's beginning here, and also because congress has adjourned," said Stennis.

NSTL Manager Jerry Hlass guided the Senator about the facility, with visits to the Space Shuttle main engine testing area and the Army Ammunition Plant.

"I am greatly impressed with Hlass's managing of the site and when I leave here I've got a message to take back to my fellow senators," exhorted Stennis.

"The message is, this facility is truly great," exuberated Stennis.

"This facility is now taking on other activities; oceanography, physical facilities, a weather department, and now the Army is creating the most modern, complete and advanced ammunition plant in the world here," proclaimed Stennis.

Mack Herring, NSTL public affairs officer, said the site is additionally used by universities and other federal and state agencies.

After his tour of the Ammunition Plant, the Senator went to Shuttle testing area, where he witnessed a 100 second test at 90 percent thrust of the Space Shuttle's main engines.

The engine test made intensely loud noises and blew out enormous amounts of smoke which later formed into a cloud causing it to rain over the Senator and NASA officials.

"This is real fun—real fun," emphasized the Senator as the rain fell over him.

After the rain ceased, the Senator, overlooking the NSTL site from the testing area control tower remarked, "The value of this Nation's investment is being proven over and over again."

"I've got to get the other senators to come down here," added Stennis.

In answer to questions, the senator replied it makes no difference to him that he is no longer considered a "Junior Senator," because the work is still the same.

He also noted he is backing his son in an upcoming House of Representatives election, emphasizing the candidate is not a liberal.

"I've known my son too long to believe that he's liberal," said Stennis.

"Although NASA has been in operation for 20 years, it's still a new concept," intoned Stennis as he left the facility.

The purpose of NSTL is three fold, stated Herring: to test large rocket propulsion engines, to adapt space technology to problems on earth, and to serve as a host for agencies and universities who need our facilities.

Pass Garden Club outlines Historic District boundaries

The Pass Christian Historical Society met Monday night, October 9, at the Pass Christian Public Library on Heirn Avenue.

Mrs. Phillip Ambler, chairperson for the Nov. 2 Tour of Homes, announced the committee chairmen for the tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Trepagnier are chairmen for the sale of tickets and reported tickets will be on sale at each home on tour and at the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Jerry Fitzpatrick is coordinating the hostesses for the homes; Mrs. Jack Pritchard is obtaining the homes for the tour; Mrs. Marvin A. Law, publicity; Mrs. Rory Rafferty and Mrs. Randall Jones, arrangements for the tea; Mrs. Marvin Mingledorf and Mrs. Donald Rogers, brochure; and Mrs. Rosamond Wallace, flower arrangements.

The program was turned over to Mrs. Mary Shoemaker from the Department of Archives and History in Jackson.

Mrs. Shoemaker showed a slide presentation of the architectural traditions of Scenic Drive, with the vernacular forms as opposed to more academic styles.

She noted the blend of natural settings with the oaks and shrubs, the set-back of the properties, and complimented citizens on their good job of preserving the community.

High-light of the program was the report the nomination has been completed and the boundaries have been set for the historic district.

The boundaries are: beginning with Mrs. John R. Frith, 961 East Scenic Drive through the residence of W. E. Logan, 230 West Beach Drive (this is continuous and includes all of Scenic Drive) then picks up significant properties on West Beach Blvd.

Only significant properties on West Beach because of the destruction of Hurricane Camille.)

The properties on Seal Avenue were included because of the styles bordering Scenic Drive, two residences on Second Street that once "belonged to the beach" and the office of Dr. C. Taylor.

The district includes 128 structures, including commercial. The area was nominated for National Significance because of its integrity and minimum number of intrusions. The area only has 14 intrusions and is to be called Scenic Drive Historic District.

The properties are now eligible for the Grants-In-Aid program which is 50-50 matching funds for preservation of these properties.

Mrs. Shoemaker identified master builder Frank Whittmann as the person whose hand is in the most important beachfront properties.

To Whom It May Concern:

Mr. Johnny Banks needs no introduction to most of the people of Hancock County. You will see his name on the ballot this November for School Board Member. Mark an "X" before his name.

It is important to re-elect Mr. Banks as School Board Member for many reasons for your child's future and handling your tax dollars. He has been conscientious in responsibility to the needs of education and is aware of the problems that face this county now. Most important he has been on the ground floor in making plans to solve these problems. We need men like Mr. Banks to vote as they believe for the present and future of schools. Our school system needs men who are aware of the priorities of education in Hancock County not just one part of it, and I believe that Mr. Banks has done that kind of work as a school board member. To insure Mr. Banks being a representative of the people of this county it is necessary that they vote for him in November.

Bay church's project calendar nears deadline

The First Missionary Baptist Church of Bay St. Louis is sponsoring a Community Birthday Calendar project, according to Chairman Howard Sheppard.

"The project is well underway and sales are booming. Teams are going door to door selling and the response is good. Most people believe the calendars to be a great project for the community," Sheppard said.

The calendar's feature birth dates, wedding anniversaries, ads from local businesses and organizations.

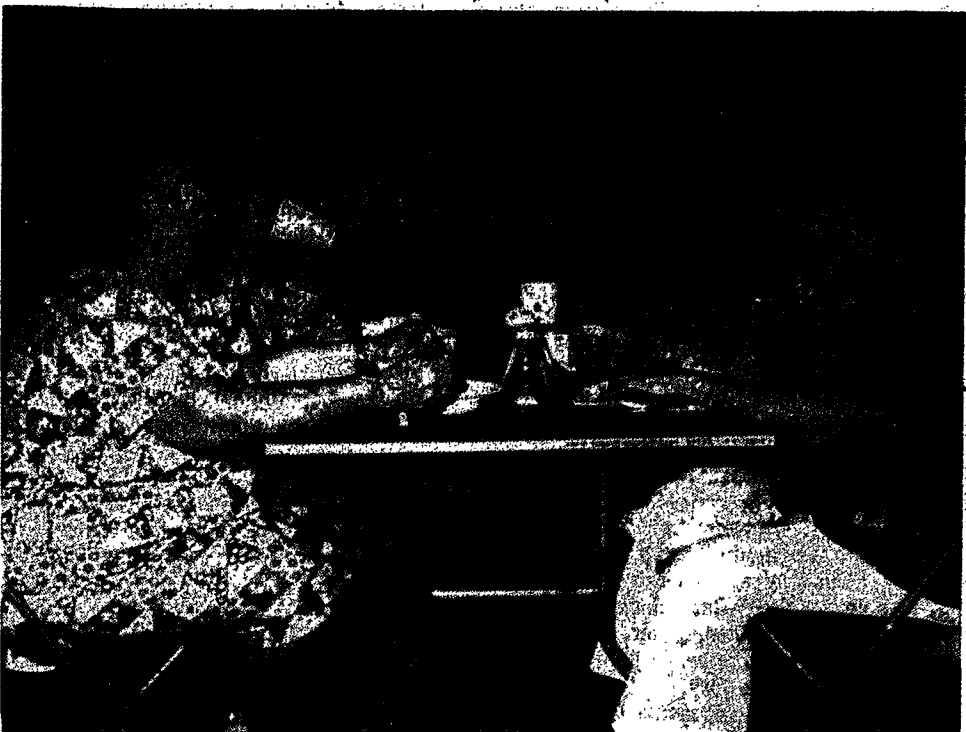

"Since sales are increasing and there are a limited number of ads that we can offer to the local merchants, chain stores, organizations listing their meeting dates, social functions, and special events, we are encouraging all merchants to purchase an ad as soon as possible," Sheppard continued.

"If you would like a representative to come to your home or meet with your organization you may call 467-7893 for further assistance," he said.

Our deadline is October 27 and our goal is to sell 300 or more calendars to show that there are three hundred or more concerned members of our community," Sheppard states.

County leader nominations due in Hancock ASCS office

Farmers are reminded that the county ASCS office is now receiving nominations for ASC community committee election candidates.

James O. Ladner and B.L. Dossett, chairpersons of the Pearl River and Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committees, encourage farmers to use this opportunity to nominate their farm neighbors as candidates in the ASC committee election.

Ladner and Dossett said the ASC committee provides the important service of administering government farm programs to the farm community.

The election will be conducted by mail from Nov. 24 to Dec. 4. Eligible farm voters will be provided with instructions for filling out the secret ballot and returning it to the county ASCS office.

Most resident farmers are eligible to hold office as ASCS committee-members. If a farmer would like detailed information concerning eligibility requirements, he or she should contact either a present committee person or the county ASCS office.

In filling out a petition, farmers should be careful to include the name of only one nominee, the signatures of at least three eligible ASC voters who support the nominee, and certification that the nominee is willing to serve if elected.

Petitions must contain this information; without it, they will not be accepted. The completed petition should be dated and mailed or hand-delivered to the county ASCS office no later than Oct. 30.

ASC committee elections are open to all eligible ASC voters without regard to race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.

Any concerned farmer with an interest in serving fellow producers would be an asset to the ASC committee.

For this reason, farmers are urged to petition for the farmers of their choice. The individual producer will benefit in the long run from a responsible, concerned team of ASC committee members in the local administration of U.S. government farm programs.

Pearl River County has 5 ASC communities and Hancock County has 3 communities. The name of Pearl River County communities are A, B, C, D, and E. The names of Hancock County communities are F, G, and H.

Posters pertaining to information of the election have been placed in an establishment in each community.

Wise decisions

The Bay St. Louis and Waveland Fire Departments have both stopped issuing permits to burn fires, and have revoked all previously issued.

Both cities are correct in not issuing fire permits with our area as dry as it is now.

Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Diamondhead Fire Departments as well as the Volunteer units of Hancock County have been working overtime trying to keep woods fires under control.

The seriousness of the situation was evident Thursday when a residence was destroyed in Shoreline Park by a woods fire.

We, as civic minded residents of Hancock County, can do our part by being extra careful until this dry period ends.

We know some of you will say, "Well, it's only a woods fire," and that may be true, but those woods fires can burn down residences and we lose thousands of dollars in forestry products every year to woods fires.

We can also be helpful by reporting any fires we see to the proper authorities.

Many drag their feet

As of Friday noon there have been only 1,722 residents of Bay St. Louis to re-register at City Hall since Nov. 1, 1977. Now that isn't many when you think there should be approximately 4,000 people registered.

The deadline for re-registration will be Oct. 31, 1978 and at that time the old registration books will be destroyed.

If there is a special election in the City of Bay St. Louis for any issue, persons not re-registered will not be able to vote without the re-registration.

The Bay St. Louis City Clerk's office is open Monday thru Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. For those working late, the City Clerk's office will be open until 6 p.m. on Wednesday, October 25th.

We are sure that if the hours at City Hall are not in agreement with the time you have available, the City clerk will make an effort to be there at a special time for you. All you have to do is give him a call.

The Honorable Sheriff Sylvan Ladner
Hancock County Courthouse
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sheriff Ladner:

Last Friday, as I was returning from New Orleans fairly late at night, my car began to lose compression.

Two of your deputies on patrol noticed my difficulty and, when my car became disabled, volunteered to assist me, which assistance I very gladly accepted, since I was on Highway 607 in the NSTL Buffer Zone.

Their alertness, courtesy and professionalism in rendering this assistance is to be commended, as are you as their superior. Please convey my heartfelt thanks to them and my appreciation.

With my very best personal good wishes, I am,

Sincerely yours,
Edwin R. Ling

ANOTHER ACCIDENT ON HWY. 603—Mobile Medic ambulance takes Ronnie Darrington, driver of overturned truck to Hancock General Hospital for emergency treatment Friday. Darrington, of Mobile, Ala., was transferred to a hospital there later Friday. Waveland Patrolman Terry Tartavouille, right, directs traffic until Rayborne Silkwood, Mississippi Highway patrolman, arrived on the scene. Patrolman Silkwood said he was told by a motorist following the truck that a white car was stopped in the middle of the road and the truck's driver tried to avoid crashing into a pickup truck behind the white car. His truck jackknifed. Silkwood said he was told the truck was traveling slower than the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit. Darrington reportedly suffered chest and back injuries. The truck was leased from Hertz by John Saxton Foods, Atlanta. In addition to the Waveland police and highway patrol, Hancock County Sheriff's deputies and a Waveland fire truck remained on the scene because of a diesel fuel leaking from the truck. Hwy. 603 was blocked from US-90 to the Old Kila Road for several hours. (Staff photo-Ellis Cuevas)

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL —
THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Over the past dozen years at least four major federal regulatory agencies have been created, all dedicated to the protection of the public. These agencies — Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Environmental Protection Agency, Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and Consumer Product Safety Commission — were added to a score of other federal regulatory agencies dating back to the creation of the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1887.

All these agencies are designed, in one way or another, to "protect" the public.

What does this "protection" cost Americans today and is the "protection" worth the price?

The twenty or so federal regulatory agencies collectively employ more than 100,000 persons and spend billions of dollars. Their rules and regulations fill more than 60,000 pages of small print.

In a paper published recently by the Center for the Study of American Business, a researcher calculated the direct costs of federal regulation to have reached $65 billion in 1976 — an amount more than double the amount the government spends on health care, 73 percent of the amount appropriated to national defense, and more than one third of all private investment in new plants and equipment.

The cost of federal regulation, of course, is passed on to the consumer in the form of higher prices for the goods or services he purchases.

On a per capita basis, the cost of government regulation for 1976 reached $307. This means your share of the cost of federal regulation was $307.

Considering the fact that regulation increases prices, impairs productivity of the market system, causes the misallocation of resources, and restricts the freedoms of business and consumers, Americans have every right to raise the question:

"Federal regulation — is it worth it?"

found her guilty," the district attorney said, beating a hand upon the jury box. "He then executed her in her own home. She did not get a fair, public trial," he concluded in a soft voice.

"We cannot bring Janice Ladner back. She will never hold her daughter in her arms again," Necaise said quietly.

Members of the Ladner family in the courtroom broke into tears at this point.

"If the defendant is found guilty, his parents, can visit him in the penitentiary. His brothers and sisters can go talk to him there," Necaise explained to the jury.

"He may even get another chance to start over again," the prosecutor said.

"But Janice Ladner is out in a cold hole, without her daughter. Her daughter, mother, father, and husband will never see her again," Necaise softly told the jury.

"All they can do is take flowers to her grave on her birthday, Christmas, Easter, Mother's Day, and set them out there," he continued.

"Joy Lynn Ladner will grow into a young woman without the counsel of a mother, all because of one selfish, possibly lustful act on the part of the defendant," Necaise lashed out.

"All I ask is the verdict you deliver is the one you feel in your heart is the right one," Necaise concluded.

Defense Attorney Atchison addressed the jury with the assistance of blown up copies of the ballistic reports.

"The most serious thing in anybody's life is to be brought up before a court where their liberty or freedom is involved," said Atchison.

"Some things never change...mountains and rivers change, but human nature never does. Charles Depreo doesn't change," he told an attentive jury.

"Joy Lynn said there was a struggle outside, and Janice was outside. There is evidence to show that certain things do not hold up," he continued in a steady voice.

"There were three bullet holes in the door. There were three bullet holes in Janice Ladner, two bullets through her body and one lodged in her body," he recounted from testimony.

"One struck Joy Lynn in the shoulder and passes through. The entrance to the house through the front door leads to a foyer, then up three steps to the hall," he explained to the jury.

"If the child heard her mother, and came to the stairs, she would be at just about the right elevation," he continued.

"Being the mother of the child, Janice Ladner probably protected the child and headed to the bedroom," Atchison told the jury.

He then explained how a bullet could have exited through Janice Ladner's body and continued through Joy Lynn's shoulder.

Atchison then turned the jury's attention to a blow-up of the ballistic reports.

"Of all the guns taken from the Depreo home, not one has been connected with the projectile taken from Janice's body," Atchison told the jury, referring to the ballistic report.

"The expert Dial said the projectile bears some individual characteristics to a test projectile, but due to mutilation, cannot be definitely connected," read Atchison.

"Cartridges found in front of the home cannot be identified to any gun found in the Depreo home, but all were fired from the same gun," he continued.

"This leaves a lot of unanswered questions," the defense attorney said.

"I want to ask you to do something...go into that jury room, look at all the evidence, look underneath the surface, and you'll see facts are not supported," Atchison asked the jury.

"This is the most important decision you will ever make in your lives...use common sense to make your decision," he concluded.

FRIDAY'S TESTIMONY

Depreo took the witness stand in his own behalf Friday, telling District Attorney Albert Necaise he was "indirectly forced into making a confession" by Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner.

Depreo told Necaise he was forced into making the statement on April 22 in Portsmouth, Virginia.

"They (Ladner, Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson, and Mississippi Highway Patrol Investigator Joe Price) told me I was going to be extradited back to Mississippi. I said I wasn't going back," said Depreo.

"They said if I didn't go back to Mississippi, they weren't coming back for me. They said they would send somebody big and tough," Depreo told the court.

"Who threatened you," Necaise drilled.

"Sheriff Ladner did," replied a nervous Depreo.

"Why didn't you tell Mote (Naval Investigator Robert Mote) about these threats when you talked to him," asked Necaise.

"I didn't think it was a good idea to tell one law enforcement officer about another, I know how they operate," Depreo replied.

Depreo said he signed the confession so his father and friends wouldn't get in trouble.

"When I told him (Peterson) I did it, he went to get Sheriff Ladner," said Depreo under intense questioning by Necaise.

Of The Office Of
A. F. Summer, Attorney General

IN ADDITION TO KICKING THE TIRES

Q: I have never bought a used car before and would like to know what sort of things I need to watch out for. Can you help me?

A: Examine the outside of the car thoroughly. Look for rust, dents, and evidence that portions of the car have rusted out and been repaired using body putty. Be especially careful in examining areas around the bottom of doors and the rear fenders.

Look under the car. Check for breaks in the frame or signs that the frame has been welded. Look for excessive rusting of the frame. All these conditions can signal weaknesses in the vehicle's structure. Also, check the condition of the muffler, tailpipe, and exhaust pipe. Look for signs of oil or transmission fluid leakage on the ground or pavement under the car. Look for signs of fluid leaking from shock absorbers. Check the condition of the tires, including inside surfaces. Look for signs of brake fluid leaking on the inside of the tires.

Walk around the car and check the condition of the window glass. Check the condition of the lenses in all vehicle lights — front, back, and side. Test all the lights to make sure they are functioning (headlights, taillights, flashers, backup lights, brake lights, turn signals, running lights in fenders).

Push down on the corners of the car, front and back, to check the shock absorbers. If the car bounces up and down several times, the shocks are worn. Stand back some distance from the car and see if it is level. If one corner is lower than another, one of the springs may be weak or it may have a broken leaf. While standing at a distance, look for evidence that the car has been in an accident (ripples in the fender, dents, or paint that doesn't match).

Lift the hood of the car and check the condition of the belts and hoses. Check the battery to see if it is cracked. Pull out the oil dipstick to see how dirty the oil is. A check of the mileage on the mileage indicated on lubrication stickers (affixed to doorposts or sometimes at some location under the hood) will give you an indication as to when the car had its last oil change and lubrication, and whether the previous owner neglected such necessary services. (Note: if the previous owner changed his oil and lubricated the car himself, you won't find such evidence.)

Open the trunk and check the spare tire. If it is worn unevenly or is cupped, something may be wrong with the front end and a front tire was put in the trunk as a spare to hide the problem. Make sure the car has a jack and that it is in good condition.

Get inside the car. Turn on the ignition and check the lights, including the warning lights on the dashboard. Take a friend along, and have him check the various lights from the outside as you turn them on from the inside. Also check the brake pedal for free play.

Book Review By Hart Shorn Bay St. Louis

WAVELAND AUTHOR'S THIRD BOOK

Orrin H. Pilkey, retired civil engineer and Waveland resident, is one of three co-authors of the book "From Curruck to Calabash."

Pilkey was joined in the project by his son, Dr. Orrin H. Pilkey, Jr., a professor of marine geology at Duke University, and Dr. William J. Neal, another professor of geology on sabbatical leave from his college in Michigan. Neal's work was supported by the National Science Foundation.

The book was sponsored by the State of North Carolina's Science and Technology Research Center as a public service to those living or planning to live near the shore.

The book is a study of the entire North Carolina barrier island chain from Curruck County on the Virginia border to Calabash on the South Carolina line.

In simple layman's language, it describes how and why an island "eroded," an inlet forms, a channel fills up, what happens when a seawall or jetty is built, and how a homeowner can lessen damage from wave, wind, tides and storm surge by proper construction methods.

Sections are included on mobile homes and how to tie them down, on what steps to take when a hurricane threatens; a list of governmental agencies concerned with coastal development; and an extensive bibliography.

Purpose of the work is to help North Carolinians live in harmony with nature at the shore line. However, the principles of shore line geology and engineering are applicable to coast lines other than North Carolina, including our own Gulf Coast.

The flood protection ordinance of Hancock County is cited as a model and guide for other shoreline communities in developing their own protective regulations.

Essential parts of this ordinance are quoted. The Waveland, Bay St. Louis, Gulfport, and NSTL Libraries have copies of the book.

Those wishing to buy a copy may do so by writing to the North Carolina Science and Technology Research Center, P.O. Box 12235, Research Triangle Park, N.C. 27709. The cost of $3.95 includes postage.

This latest publication is the third technical book that Pilkey has co-authored with one of his two sons since retiring from General Electric Co. at NSTL.

Both of the sons are college professors, one in engineering at the University of Virginia and the other in marine geology at Duke University. The first book was in engineering, "Mechanics of Solids."

"How to Live With an Island" in the field of oceanography is about a barrier island, Bogue Banks, in North Carolina. The work deals with how islands form, erode, travel, etc., and how to build to resist storms.

Stanislaus puts 'de feet' on Tigers

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Side winding Juan Betanzos foot was the difference in the battle of arch rivals Bay High and St. Stanislaus Friday. Stanislaus' margin of victory was two long field goals by Betanzos, one 43 and the other 33 yards.

The final tally in the high scoring contest was Stanislaus 27, Bay High 21. The Rock-A-Chaws moved the ball on the ground and the Tigers through the air.

Stanislaus quarterback Peter Bernheim threw two touchdown passes and ran in for one. Bay High quarterback Dwyane LaFontaine passed for two touchdowns and ran in a two point conversion to tie the score 14-14 in the second quarter.

Offense dominated the game with the defensive squads of each team turning in outstanding individual plays throughout the game.

The Rock-A-Chaw and Tiger stands were humming throughout the contest with the overflow attendance.

Stanislaus was the first to score in the first quarter when Bay High's first play from scrimmage was fumbled and recovered by Randy Santa Cruz on the Tiger 24. Six plays later Bernheim hit Perre Cabell with a 13 yard pass. Charles Armato kicked the extra point giving the Rocks a 7-0 edge with 9:24 left in the first quarter.

Bay High came back on the kick-off when Ronald Collins returned to the Rocks 45 and a flag moved the ball to the 30. On the Tigers sixth play LaFontaine hit Jonathan Lewis with a eight yard pass for a score. The PAT by the Tigers was wide giving the Rocks a 7-6 edge with 6:49 still in the first stanza.

Bay High's Joe Cabaniss punted to the Rocks four yard line putting the Rocks in deep trouble. The Rocks moved out of trouble and scored on their 12th play as Bernheim hit Cabell with a 24 yard pass.

Cabell's second score of the night. Armato added the extra point giving the Rocks a 14-6 lead with 7:37 left in the second quarter.

On the kick-off, Larry Jackson moved the ball out to the Tigers 26 yard line. Nine plays later LaFontaine hit Mark Hardee for a 15 yard strike. LaFontaine tied the score when he dropped back to pass on the PAT and scrambled in to tie the score 14-14 with 3:41 left in the first half.

After the Tigers kicked off the Rocks moved the ball to Bay High's 26 yard line with only three seconds left in the second quarter. Betanzos then booted a 43 yard field goal with plenty to spare as the buzzer ended the first half giving the Rocks a 17-14 lead.

The Bay High and the Stanislaus bands entertained the audience and then the bands combined and did two numbers together.

The annual Punt, Pass and Kick trophies were awarded by Charlie Henderson Ford to the local winners during halftime. The contest by the Ford Motor Company was also co-sponsored by the Bay St. Louis Jaycees.

Bay High kicked-off to start the second half and Santa Cruz moved the ball out to the SSC 37. Bernheim on a tackle breaking run moved 48 yards and was kept from scoring by a Kevin Favre stop at the Tiger 20. Four plays later Bernheim moved in from the four for a score. Armato kicked the extra point giving the Rocks a 24-14 lead with 8:15 still to go in the third quarter.

As the third quarter was winding down, the Rocks stalled on the Tiger 17 and Betanzos booted a 33 yard field goal as the quarter ended making it Rocks 27, Tigers 14.

The Tigers third score was set up when a Rock pass was intercepted by Ricky Johnson on the SSC 36. It took the Tigers only seven plays when LaFontaine pitched out to Chuck Benigno who went in from the 12. The conversion by Rod Stieffell was good making the score Tigers 21, Rocks 27 with 7:06 left in the contest.

The Tigers got a break when on a fourth down Scott Senner went back to punt and the ball was centered way over his head. Senner picked up the ball and ran it out to the Rocks 30 where the Tigers took over with 1:33 left.

Bay High was moving the ball when Santa Cruz intercepted a Tiger pass to ice the game for the Rocks with only 38 seconds. The Rocks held onto the ball as the contest ended.

In total yardage the Rocks had the edge 278-208, SSC with 216 on the ground and Bay High 59.

On passing yardage, Bay High had the edge, 159-60. Bay High completed 8 of 13 passes with one intercepted and Stanislaus complete 5 of 7 passes.

Cabaniss had two punts for a 44 yard average for the Tigers and Santa Cruz had one punt for 42 yards. In penalties Stanislaus had 5 for 75 yards and Bay High 7 for 95.

Bay High will be open next week and Stanislaus will visit the Pass Christian Pirates who have a 4-2 record which is the same as the Rock-A-Chaws.

Rhodes: One of our most consistent offensive efforts of the season

By ELLIS CUEVAS

St. Stanislaus head coach Bill Poole said after the Rocks edged Bay High 27-21, "Bay High came over here to play, it was a good clean contest."

Bay High head coach Billy Rhodes said, "Our team gave us their all, it just wasn't in the books for us to win."

Rhodes added, "It was one of the most consistent offensive efforts for us this season, we bogged down some times but we moved the ball consistently."

Poole had high praises for Perre Cabell, his smallest player, for catching two touchdown passes. Poole also had good comments on his soccer-style kicker, Juan Betanzos on his 43 and 33 yard field goals.

Rhodes said, "Defensively, Kevin Favre and Tim Delcuze stood out and on offense the passing of Dwyane LaFontaine coupled with catching of Jonathan Lewis and Mark

Hardee was very good. Chuck Benigno also had a fine running game."

Rhodes commented on how the ball control of the Rocks dominated the game with 51 plays against the Tigers 36 plays.

Coach Poole said, "You have to complement coach Billy Rhodes for having his team ready to play, the players really did a fine job. Bay High is a good passing team."

"Peter Bernheim had a good game passing for two touchdowns and running one in for the Rocks," stated coach Poole.

Coach Rhodes felt that the big mistake which hurt the Tigers was the first play from scrimmage when they fumbled and the Rocks capitalized with a score and the Tigers had to play catch-up ball. We are proud of our players and we went out to win. I am glad it was a good clean competitive game."

Pirates, 22-East Central, 6

Hornets dominate stats, Pass tops on scoreboard

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Coach Buddy Lumpkin's Pass Christian Pirates defeated East Central 22-6 Friday upping their record to 4-2.

Gene Lang put the Pirates on the score board with a 81 yard gallop followed by a Pat Barnes point after in the first quarter.

"East Central didn't give us much chance in the first half as they kept the ball most of the time with 34 plays from scrimmage and the Pirates having only 12," coach Lumpkin said.

Quarterback Virgil Swanier hit Robert Bailey on a 54 yard score in the second quarter and Barnes added the PAT giving Pass a 14-0 lead.

Later in the second quarter East Central scored on a five yard run and missed on a two point conversion attempt. The score at the half was 14-6.

Barnes went in for a three yard run in the fourth quarter and the Pirates iced the game when John Pat Swanier got a two-point conversion.

Coach Lumpkin said, "The long run by Lang was a lift after the strong defense East Central showed in the first quarter. The long pass play, our only one completed for the night, from Swanier to Bailey was sure a beauty."

"Mackey Dedeaux did a fine job on defense and all turned in some fine runs on offense in the game," coach Lumpkin added.

East Central had 14 first downs to the Pirates' seven. In rushing via ground, the Pass had 176 and East Central 56, passing the Pirates 54 yards and East Central 137, giving the Pirates a 230-193 edge in total yards.

The Pirates didn't have any fumble and East Central had one and lost it. Penalties were 4-40 Pirates and 7-65 for East Central.

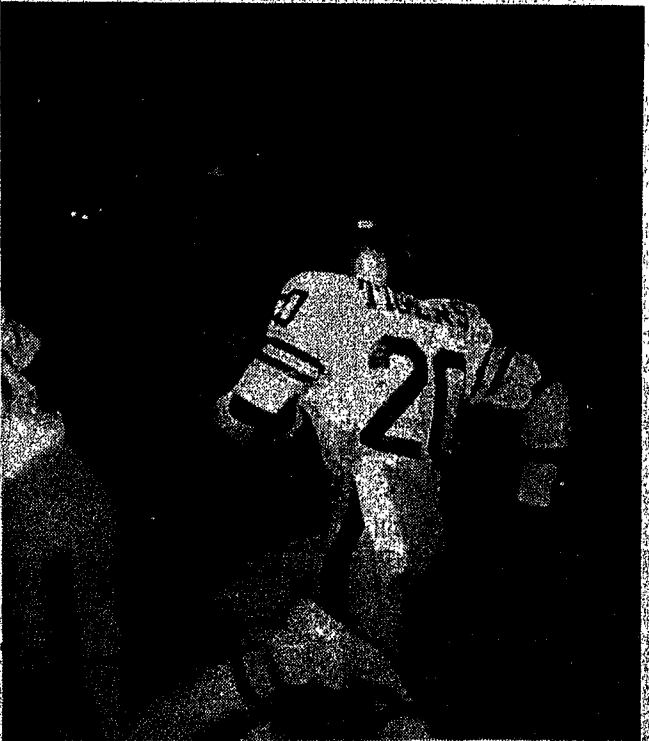

Pass Christian will entertain the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws in Pirate Stadium next Friday with both teams sporting identical records of 4-2.

Hawks nest on Louisiana Pine, hatch their 19th straight win

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Hancock North Central Hawks defeated Pine, La. 40-0 Thursday. It was the eighth victory for the Hawks this year and 19th straight regular season victory without a defeat.

Hawks Coach Irvin Favre said, "We didn't start out like a house of fire against Pine, as they have a real scrappy team, we only led 14-0 at the half."

Greg Ladner had a fine night scoring four touchdowns and Byron Ladner scored on a pass from quarterback Vincent Adams. The Hawks' final score was a pass from quarterback Robert DeVaughn.

Greg Ladner's scores were for runs of six, six, five and 45 yards. Adams passed to Jesse Drame for a two-point conversion and Willie Santiago ran for another two-point conversion.

"Our second team played half of the third quarter and the whole fourth quarter, and we are well pleased with playing 33 in the game. Our defense did a fine job, with sophomores doing a fine job," commented coach Favre.

"We moved the ball better in the second half, and our defense on the pass was good when you consider Pine didn't complete a pass out of eight thrown," coach Favre said.

Coach Favre was very pleased with the number of Hawk fans who drove the hour and half to see their team play, saying, "We almost filled our part of the stadium."

The Hawks had a balanced attack in the Pine game picking up 155 yards on the ground and 145 yards via passes. Pine had 81 yards on the ground and nothing by air.

The Hawks had 11 first downs to 7 for Pine. In the passing side of the game the Hawks were 13-0 and Pine 8-0.

Next week the Hawks will get a visit from the Notre Dame Rebels who are 4-4 and improving each week.

It will be fill the stadium night at Hancock next Friday, coach Favre said. With an additional seating capacity of 500, an all-out effort will be to try and set an attendance record in Hawk stadium.

"It sure helps a team win when the stands are filled with supporters," commented coach Favre.

Favre said he hopes there won't even be standing room much less vacant seats.

OCTOBER
October is a scarlet month
A bronze month and a gold.
A month of lovely mists at dawn
and breezes turning cold;
And some there are who say for it, and I am one, I fear -
October is the richest month and fairest of the year.

October is the apple month and month of ripened pears -
October for the harvest feasts her gayest raiment wears.
Though some are saddened by the leaves that fall,
I still would choose of all the months -
October first of all.

October is a glorious month, exultant in her pride, October's an artistic month that points the countryside.
October is a lavish month with gifts for everyone.
Oh, would I could be half so fair when my life's work is done.

The Ole Pastor Says

CHILDREN, OBEY YOUR PARENTS in the Lord: for this is right," Eph. 6:1. This remarkable New Testament passage, to a great degree disregarded by this generation, harmonizes completely with the fifth commandment God gave to Moses to govern the lives of His people Israel.

"Honour thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee" Exodus 20:12.

God who gave that command to govern man obeyed it in the person of His Son, Jesus Christ. Thus, God taught in His Word, and left the beautiful example in the life of His son, that in the wise councils of His own wisdom and purpose, it was right and honorable that children obey their parents in the Lord.

Jesus came to earth as a Man among men. He retained His divine nature while assuming a full human nature. Thus, he was God's man and Man's God.

From his childhood through His adulthood He was all that God intended every human to be.

There was no disappointment in Him. He was and is the perfect example for each believer to follow. In His availability to the will of God, His obedience to the perfect law of God, and His submission to the Spirit of God, Jesus was a perfect human.

When Jesus, the twelve year old lad, was found of his parents in the Temple in Jerusalem "sitting in the midst of the doctors, both

"Did you tell Sheriff Ladner," asked Necaise.

"After the promises I did," Depreo said.

"I was promised if I gave a confession, they would not search my father's house, only get the gun they wanted. I told them exactly where it was," Depreo told the court.

"They told me they wouldn't search the house in Norfolk," he added.

Depreo said his two roommates in Norfolk had marijuana in the apartment and he didn't want to get them in trouble.

Atchison called Depreo to the stand and began to reconstruct the day of April 8 with the defendant.

Depreo said during the time of the murder, he had been at his home watching television and doing laundry until 2 a.m.

"I stopped at Cuevas Junction, a pool room at Highway 43 and 603," Depreo said, after explaining he had been at a cousin's house.

"I shot pool, drank a couple of beers, that's it," he continued.

"I turned on TV and watched TV," Depreo said.

"Did you leave the house that night," asked Atchison.

"No sir. I stayed up until two o'clock maybe. I had no clothes to wear—I hadn't washed clothes yet—so I washed clothes at the house while I watched TV," Depreo testified.

"When did you first hear about the Janet Ladner incident," asked Atchison.

"My father works from 10:30 (p.m.) until 7:30 (a.m.), and I guess he woke me up and mentioned it to me then. I went back to sleep. I think he said Janet and Buck's house is on fire," Depreo told the court.

Under an intense cross examination by Necaise, Depreo said he had gotten information for the confession "...from the stuff that came in from other people. Stuff I heard here (in Norfolk), and Peterson was asking me 'did this happen? Did this happen?'"

"I went to Janet's house about two weeks ago..." started Necaise, leaning close to Depreo at the witness stand.

"This is in your handwriting. Why two weeks before," Necaise asked.

"I was told what time it happened," explained Depreo.

"I walked there from my house..." Necaise quoted from the confession.

"Did you write this," he asked.

"It's in my handwriting," said Depreo.

"Is that what happened," questioned Necaise.

"No, I was at home," denied Depreo sharply.

"Why did you put it down," Necaise asked.

"So my father wouldn't get in trouble," the defendant answered.

Depreo said there were unregistered guns at his father's home in Kiln.

"I put the .22 caliber pistol in my sock..." Necaise read from the confession.

"They told me I had it in my belt, or pocket," said Depreo.

"But they asked about three places," said Necaise.

"It's hard to put one gun in three places," explained Depreo.

"I sat down at the table and talked with Janet. She went to the bedroom and I followed..." Necaise continued with the confession.

"Did they ask you if you followed her to the bedroom," queried Necaise, leaning on Depreo in the witness stand.

"No," they asked me what happened next," said Depreo.

"Joy was sitting in the other bedroom. I took the .22 pistol and shot Janet in the front..." Necaise read.

"You said in this confession where you shot her," he asked Depreo.

"That's where I've been told she was shot," answered Depreo.

"Joy Lynn was close to Janet and I shot her by mistake..." Necaise continued.

"That's just what you did; isn't it," Necaise heatedly accused.

"That's what they told me happened," declared Depreo.

"After that, I set it on fire..." the district attorney quoted from the confession.

"You wrote that down," he added.

"I wrote it down, but I didn't mean it," Depreo protested.

"I knew the house was on fire," he added in explanation.

"You knew it was on fire because you set it on fire," accused Necaise.

cused Necaise.

"That's what I put down," exclaimed an exasperated Depreo.

Atchison then protested to Judge Grant, claiming that the district attorney was too close to the witness.

Necaise ordered away from Depreo by Judge Grant, asked bluntly, "Did you write this," pointing to a copy of the confession.

"Yes," answered Depreo.

Atchison, shortly before Depreo was excused from the stand, asked the defendant to address the jury.

"Look the jury in the eye, and tell them you did not do this," Atchison said to Depreo.

Depreo looked at the 14 members of the jury and said in a quiet voice, "No, I didn't."

Necaise, in cross examination, asked Depreo if any of the confession he had written was a lie.

"Everything about the murder was a lie," Depreo stated.

"Look the jury in the eye and tell them the truth, that you lied to the law officers," Necaise said, mocking Atchison's actions.

"I lied to the officers," Depreo responded in a strong voice to the jury.

Earl E. (Buck) Ladner was called as a witness for the defense prior to Depreo taking the stand.

Ladner contended he was at a fishing camp on the Jordan River the night of the incident.

He testified he and his wife Janet were to get a divorce in May, and were on "a very friendly basis."

Ladner said he had seen Depreo once after the murder during that period when investigators were searching for an assailant named "Chuck."

The witness reported seeing Depreo to Highway Patrol Investigator T. P. Naylor.

"I saw him once. I'm almost positive," said Ladner to Atchison.

"I was on I-10, and I saw the truck. I expected to see his father, but Chuck was driving. I almost slammed on the brakes and went back to talk to him, but I went home and told my mother-in-law instead," said Ladner.

"Did you tell any other law officers," asked the defense attorney.

"No," answered Ladner.

Ladner was unable to answer many questions involving dates and times following the murder, "Because I was in a very traumatic state. Nothing registered," claims Ladner.

The defense rested its case late Friday evening.

Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner told the jury earlier Friday that investigations have failed to produce a motive for the slaying of the Waveland school teacher last April.

Sheriff Ladner was called to testify by defense attorney James Atchison, representing Charles Edward (Chuck) Depreo, on trial for the murder of Janet Ladner.

"Has Charles Depreo ever given you a motive for the murder," asked Atchison.

"No sir," replied Ladner.

"Did you ever ask him why he did it," asked the defense counsel.

"He said he just did it," answered Ladner.

"Did you, in your investigation, ever determine a motive," Atchison continued.

"No. He never said why he did it," the Sheriff answered.

"So you just closed the file," said Atchison.

"No sir." In June we were still checking the case. The case is closed now because we have no reason to believe anybody else did it," explained Ladner.

District Attorney Albert Necaise cross examined the Sheriff, asking about a .32 caliber pistol found in a creek near the Ladner home.

"How far is it from the Ladner house to the creek," asked Necaise.

"About 150-200 feet," Ladner answered.

"Would it have been possible to walk from the Ladner house to the creek and throw the gun in (to the creek), Necaise queried.

"Yes sir," the sheriff replied.

Sheriff Ladner then testified, under questioning by the defense, that there is a creek between the Ladner residence and Cuevas Junction, and also a creek near the Depreo home.

"Did Chuck Depreo make any mention in his statement about having any gasoline that night," asked Atchison.

"No sir," answered Ladner.

"How did Chuck say he lit the fire," Atchison asked.

"He said he took the spread, covered the body, lit one corner, and walked home," Ladner replied.

Sheriff Ladner explained that Depreo made the statement about lighting the blanket orally at Norfolk on April 22, and did not mention lighting the fire by that method in his written confession.

The Sheriff also told Atchison that Depreo's hair was not as dark last April as it was in court Friday.

Sheriff Ladner pointed to Depreo's brother, Sonny, and said Chuck's hair was a "dark brown, collar length hair, the color of Sonny's."

"His hair is not the same color. His hair was lighter in Norfolk," said Ladner.

Doctor Leonard Ball, a child psychologist at Gulfport Memorial Hospital, took the stand for the defense.

"Do you recall asking Joy Lynn for a description of who shot her mother and herself," asked Atchison.

"Saturday morning she gave me a vague and limited description, saying the assailant was taller than I was, not as old as myself, might have worn blue jeans, and said her mother looked out the window and said someone was there," the witness stated.

"She thought she heard her mother say 'Chuck,'" Dr. Ball continued.

"Sunday morning she volunteered a description of someone with blond-colored hair, not to the shoulders, but longer than mine," said the child psychologist.

"She was physically stable and alert," Ball told the court.

"Was anybody else present when she gave the description," asked Atchison.

"No," replied Ball.

"Based on your medical exam, was this child intelligent," asked Necaise in cross examination.

"My subjective opinion is the child was of average intelligence," the witness replied.

"Did Joy Lynn say where she got shot," asked Atchison.

"She said she got shot in the front yard," Ball responded.

"She testified she was sitting on the bed. Are you saying she is wrong," questioned Atchison.

"She told me she was shot in the front yard," the doctor stated.

THURSDAY'S TESTIMONY

A ballistics expert from Jackson was called to the witness stand Thursday and said test firings of a .22 caliber pistol confiscated during a search of the home of Depreo's parents "had similar class characteristics" to a bullet found in the remains of Janet Ladner, "but not enough individual characteristics to tell if (the bullet) was fired from the same gun," the ballistics man told the court.

John F. Dial III, a ballistics expert from the Mississippi Crime Laboratory in Jackson told the jury, "Both bullets were mutilated, possibly from rough lead build-up in the barrel of the gun..." and said it could not be determined if the bullets came from the same gun.

Under questioning by Necaise, Dial testified on the bullet and .22 caliber shell casings found at the Ladner residence.

Dial said from all characteristics on the bullet found, he ascertained the bullet came from a .22 Hi-Standard Double-Nine pistol, the type found at Eido Depreo's home.

Under cross examination, Dial told Atchison the casings found at the murder scene could not be identified to the weapon found in Depreo's home.

According to Dial, a .32 caliber pistol discovered in a creek near the Ladner home was never submitted to the crime laboratory for tests.

Necaise then requested a recess, telling the judge he needed time to decide if he was going to close out his prosecution.

After the noon recess, Necaise adressed the court.

"Your honor, the state rests its case," he said to Judge Grant.

The defense then began calling its witnesses to the stand, beginning testimony with Assistant State Fire Marshall Norman Cowart.

Cowart told the court he found evidence of "hot fire" in the bedroom where Janet Ladner's body was discovered, indicating an accelerant was on the floor during the fire.

"Concrete on the floor was heavily cracked, indicating an inflammable material was on the floor," Cowart said.

Cowart told the court he only examined the room in which the body was discovered, and could establish no burn pattern in the house.

Atchison asked Cowart to tell the jury his opinion of the type of accelerant that might have been used in the fire.

"Something other than normal contents of the house," answered Cowart.

Necaise cross examined the witness, and asked, "In your opinion, the only room with evidence of accelerants was the northwest bedroom?"

"That is correct," answered Cowart.

The defense called Mississippi Highway Patrol Investigator Joe Price to the stand, and asked him questions concerning descriptions of the assailant given by Joy Lynn Ladner.

"She said the assailant was younger than Joy Lynn's father, had slanted eyes, and was helping his father build a house," Price told the jury.

Earlier testimony had Joy Lynn identifying a Chuck building a house during a trip to the Depreo house with Janet Ladner.

The defense called Cleveland Wyatt, a Kiln Volunteer Fireman to the stand. Wyatt is Depreo's uncle, and testified Depreo was at the Wyatt home the night of the murder.

Atchison established through questioning Wyatt that the Depreo home had been under construction in 1976, but was completed in November of that year.

Doris Wyatt, wife of Cleveland Wyatt, testified that the Depreo house was "completed around Thanksgiving in 1976."

MHP Investigator T. P. Naylor was called as a witness for the defense.

During cross examination by Necaise, a composite drawing made from a description by Joy Lynn was discussed in front of the jury.

Atchison objected and requested the jury be removed to discuss the drawing with the court.

The jury was removed, and Atchison requested a mistrial be declared because of the state's insistence on bringing in the composite drawing.

The mistrial request was denied by Judge Grant.

WEDNESDAY'S TESTIMONY

Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson was called to the witness stand Wednesday afternoon by District Attorney Albert Necaise and read a confession allegedly written by Depreo April 22 in Portsmouth, Virginia.

The confession was entered into evidence by Necaise despite objections from defense attorney Atchison.

"I went to Janet's house that night and knocked on her door."

"I had a .22 caliber pistol in my sock. We talked and Janet went into the bedroom. I followed Janet to the bedroom. I shot her from the front, and then shot Joy Lynn by mistake."

"I started the house on fire. Then I walked home, towards Cuevas Junction."

In later testimony, Sheriff Ladner said Depreo confessed to "putting a blanket over the body and lighting a corner on fire" to start the fire.

Atchison asked Peterson in cross examination if the statement said anything about Depreo going across a bridge to the south of the Ladner home where the murder took place.

"Did the statement say anything about Depreo going across the bridge to the Curtis trailer," asked Atchison.

"No," Peterson answered.

The Curtis trailer is where Joy Lynn Ladner ran for help after she was shot.

"During an intense investigation, did you discover a pistol in a creek between the Ladner house and the Curtis trailer," Atchison asked.

"Yes," said Peterson.

Peterson said the pistol belonged to Jimmy Favre, and had been given to Janet Ladner by Favre.

Atchison once again questioned Peterson concerning a description of the assailant having long, blond hair.

Peterson said the first description he obtained from Joy Lynn was one of "a boy...not an old man, like you."

"I talked to Joy Lynn later, and she said he had collar length blond hair," Peterson said.

"We did not limit our investigation to a blond haired Chuck," he added.

"Do you recall discussion (at Norfolk) when Depreo expressed concern after you told him about a search warrant for his father's home," Atchison asked.

"No," Peterson answered.

"Didn't he (Depreo) show concern about the search warrant and pistol? Didn't he ask you not to go to his apartment in Norfolk because he had just moved in," Atchison queried.

"Yes, he did mention that," said Peterson.

"During this discussion, didn't you say, 'If you don't tell us about the gun, we will get a search warrant and search your father's home,' the defense attorney asked.

"No sir," answered Peterson.

Doctor Richard Tracy, a New Orleans pathologist who performed the autopsy on Janet Ladner's body took the stand at the request of the prosecution.

"From the autopsy, what was the believed cause of death," asked Necaise.

"A gunshot wound in the chest," replied Tracy.

"The bullet entered the right side of the chest, severed major arteries, and exited through the back," Tracy said.

Tracy said the wound would bring almost instant death when the arteries were severed.

The pathologist also said two other gunshot wounds were discovered in Janet Ladner's charred remains, one a superficial wound in the back and another which revealed a bullet near the spine.

"Smoke inhalation is the principal cause of death in fires, and there was none in this case," said Tracy.

Tracy said the positions of the bullet wounds made it impossible for the wounds to be self-inflicted.

Forestry Scientists report termite, fusiform progress

Some of the most exciting forestry research in the country is taking place in Gulfport.

Teams of scientific investigators are delving into the secrets of termite behavior and the mysteries of pine diseases and genetics.

The researchers are doing their best to insure the South and the nation of a continuing supply of wood and wood products.

Is there an environmentally safe way to stop termites and wood-destroying beetles from eating you out of house and home? How can we protect pine trees from disease? Can trees in the South be made to grow larger and more resistant to illness?

Researchers at the Forestry Sciences Laboratory in Gulfport are probing for answers to these questions. And the U.S. Forest Service scientists of the Southern Forest Experiment Station's research complex are creating quite a stir with what they are finding out.

Research into controlling termites started way back in 1939 at the Gulfport laboratory. Researchers developed methods of chemical control that will safeguard homes for 25 years or longer.

Homeowners in this country and abroad still benefit from this discovery. Although the presently used chemicals pose a minimal environmental hazard when properly applied, the current push is to find new methods or insecticides that are more environmentally acceptable, according to Joe Mauldin, the scientist in charge of insect research.

"Termites are fascinating creatures," says Mauldin, "and we recognize that they play a vital role in clearing the forest floor of dead wood. But when their food turns out to be somebody's house or some other wooden product, they have to be stopped."

Besides insecticides, says Mauldin, the scientists have several leads to follow. The key to controlling termites may lie in the fact that they must share their food. Only "workers" actually eat wood, which they pass along to other colony members—soldiers, kings, queens, and the young.

This trait could be turned to man's advantage. "Bait blocks"—made of wood that the termites like—could be filled with a chemical designed to upset the colony's normal functioning. Once eaten by the workers, this "subversive" chemical would soon be transmitted to the rest of the colony.

Researchers at Gulfport are cooperating with scientists at the Forest Products Laboratory in Madison, Wisconsin to examine three kinds of such chemicals. One is a slow-acting insecticide. After the workers eat it, they would return to spread lethal doses among the other termites.

The trick is, the compound has to be strong enough to be effective; yet not so strong that it kills the workers before they return to the colony.

Or, the workers might be induced to swallow a certain hormone which—when infiltrated through the termite population—would change the normal numbers of soldiers and workers.

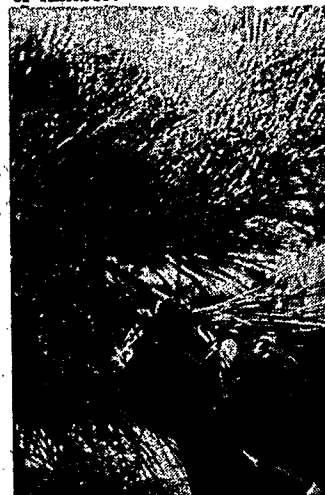

Too many of the insects would change into soldiers, leaving a dwindling force of workers and too many soldiers. Soon, the number of workers would be inadequate to feed the colony and it would die out.

Another possibility is the use of antibiotics. Fighting termites with "wonder drugs" sounds odd, but it may work. Some antibiotics destroy protozoa living in the insects' intestinal tracts. Without these microorganisms to help them, termites simply can't digest wood.

Mauldin and his staff are coming at the termite problem from another angle, too. Wood resistance—lumber from different tree species and from different parts of the tree varies in resistance to termites. Scientists hope to isolate the chemicals that make some woods repellent or even toxic to wood-eating.

And there are bugs besides termites that can damage your home! The Gulfport insect unit is also focusing on wood-destroying beetles. Because some of these beetles need dampness, a major thrust of research has been in looking for ways to reduce moisture around homes and to cut down the moisture content of lumber.

New technique -- girdle before cutting

Also, researchers are seeking methods, including chemicals, to control the beetles in wood imported into this country.

Controlling termites and beetles will protect wood already in homes. But just getting enough lumber to build new houses is a problem too. Gulfport scientists have several projects on protection and improvement of pine trees, major commercial timber source in the South.

A fungus-caused disease, "fusiform rust," weakens and deforms many pine seedlings. Many young pines are killed by the disease and the survivors are less likely to mature than healthy trees.

And, because the fungus that causes fusiform thrives in a warm, moist climate, the disease has been like a curse on pine growers in the South.

We can't say for certain how much lumber this disease robs us of. So, to fill that gap in our knowledge, researchers have set up an experiment comparing amounts of wood from two groups of trees, one group infected with rust, the other healthy. The difference in wood volume between the two sets of pines will indicate how much growth loss fusiform causes.

The forest researchers would prefer, of course, to halt fusiform rust altogether. But how? Pathologists at the lab think there's a way. The have already found out that fusiform is like influenza—it has many strains.

The scientists have now turned their attention to finding a broad-ranging fungicide that will protect pines, especially those in nurseries, according to Glenn Snow, the project leader.

"Up until now, we just haven't had a long-lasting fungicide," says Snow. "The one used in three nurseries now has to be applied two or three times a week, which can mean thirty to fifty sprayings between April and June. That adds up to a lot of money."

Snow and his co-workers think that they are close to a breakthrough on the needed fungicide. In recent tests, a promising chemical not only reduced the frequency of rust, but also lessened its severity when it did occur.

Researchers have hopes that this new fungicide in combination with genetically resistant trees may one day control fusiform rust.

Another troublesome pine disease, "brown-spot needle blight," may be on its way out, too. A fungus-caused sickness like fusiform, needle blight

Termite research -- testing insecticides attacks young longleaf pines and slows their growth.

But pathologists have tested a fungicide and means of applying it that will protect the seedlings in their vulnerable years.

Geneticists working on longleaf pine have also come up with an important finding. For years, tree growers were reluctant to plant longleaf because it was thought to grow too slowly in its seedling stage. But research has shown that not all individuals in the longleaf species carry the trait of slow growth in infancy. out of the seedling stage nearly twice as fast as others.

Measuring specific gravity of wood

A significant finding! Longleaf made up many of the "old forests" of the South and many people think it's the most attractive of all the pine species.

Not only that, it grows well after its first couple of years and is resistant to fusiform rust. Geneticists have already set aside a seed orchard of longleaf pines with the "quick growth" trait, and these trees should produce offspring with the same characteristic.

Whether a pine of any species grows well and is resistant to disease depends largely upon where the seed comes from. For instance, loblolly pines from Livingston Parish, Louisiana, are resistant to fusiform rust and usually thrive when planted in places where rust is a problem.

Seeds from these pines do well throughout the Coastal Plain near the Gulf and Atlantic Coast, according to Ozzie Wells, the researcher who made the discovery. "It may be," Wells says, "that somewhere in the evolution of the forest in and around Livingston Parish loblolly pines crossed with shortleaf pines, which are naturally quite resistant to fusiform. That trait, which is unusual in loblolly has no other shortleaf characteristics."

Because of disease resistance and fast growth, loblolly pines from the Livingston area are now popular throughout the South. And they are living up to the predictions of the geneticists. In turn, companies in the business of growing trees now darefully consider the geographical source of their seeds.

Forest geneticists are also crossbreeding different species of pines to see if they can get the best traits of each in the offspring. Fast growth and high disease resistance is one combination they're looking for. Another goal is to find topnotch strains of pines for areas without good seed sources.

The U.S. Forest estimates that by the year 2000 the demand for timber will be twice as great as it is today. For this reason, there is a growing sense of urgency about learning more about the forest and the products that come from it.

Forest geneticists are also crossbreeding different species of pines to see if they can get the best traits of each in the offspring. Fast growth and high disease resistance is one combination they're looking for. Another goal is to find topnotch strains of pines for areas without good seed sources.

Indian Summer: the lazy farmer's last chance

Every year about this time folks begin the debate as to when and if there is an Indian Summer. There are those who claim it comes in October. Some claim Indian summer is in November and some even claim it is in September while still others say there is no such thing as Indian summer.

There is a favorite story about how Indian summer was started. Whether you believe in Indian legends or not you will likely listen with interest to this tale.

The tale goes that the good thirty Indians took advantage of the fine days in early autumn and harvested their crops for the long winter to come. But the lazy Indians, who would rather go hunting, fishing, or just sleep, insisted that cold weather would wait for them.

According to the folk legend, the Great Spirit decided to show these lazy fellows a thing or two, and had Jack Frost touch the earth with a frosty reminder. How those lazy fellow bewailed and begged for another chance to gather their crops! Finally the generous Spirit decided to send them another opportunity, and so he gave them Indian Summer.

The Indian himself called these days "the lazy farmer's last chance." Even today you will find folks putting off the gathering of crops until the very last. They still depend on Indian summer to see them through. But the wise farmer knows that you cannot depend upon this season to come at any certain time. Killing frosts will not hold back for an Indian legend.

"Indian Summer," someone said, "is the best part of the whole year."

Indian summer is usually accepted as that period of time in October and early November when the weather is mild, the winds balmy and there is a soft mist and mystery along the horizon.

We are now in the midst of Indian summer. The leaves are turning varying colors in the woods—there is a symphony of color everywhere as nature adorns herself for this best of all seasons of the year. A poetic writer said, "Indian summer is seen through a veil of glamour; it is the time of picnic meals around camp fires—it is a time of dreaming, not about anything in particular but about all things."

ANIMAL RESEARCH

good, pleasant and tree. For the Indians in the old days it was a time of harvest and preparation for winter, as it is with the farmers of the country today."

The Indians occupied this country here where we live for many hundreds of years, unmolested, while the white people who now inhabit it are comparatively newcomers, having been here not much more than 200 years.

Another poetic gentleman in writing of Indian summer said that the spirits of the Indians "once a year visit the happy hunting grounds of other days."

If we could see a picture of this section here where we live made 200 years ago, we would see great pine forests with here and there a little Indian village, identified by smoke curling upwards, located mostly along the streams.

Wild game abounded everywhere and fish were plentiful in all the streams. There were no roads, but only trails, winding through the forests.

It is hard for young people to realize what a tremendous change has taken place in this section in such a short time. Old people, a very few now living, well remember when there was nothing where towns now stand, except pine woods and a house here and there.

This season is certainly the most pleasant part of the year. There is less rain and less storm. Weather bureau records show the best weather of the year is the last half of October and first part of November.

Fall insect pests likely in newly-planted fields

Many farmers are busy planting or have already planted winter grazing for this fall. Since other crops are maturing and cool night temperatures are approaching, farmers should closely monitor these newly planted fields for insect infestations.

"The primary insect pest in winter grazing fields has been armyworms," says Dr. J.P. Harris, area pest management specialist, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "They feed from the time the young plants emerge to frost."

In newly planted fields, entire stands may be destroyed before the farmer discovers it."

Fields should be monitored at least twice a week, suggests the specialist. If bare spots are noticed, check closely for worms. Control measures should be implemented when five to seven small worms are found per square foot of surface area.

Young larvae will hatch from eggs laid by female moths on lower leaves of grasses. Although larvae begin feeding as soon as they hatch, they may go unnoticed until they reach a length of about one inch.

Unlike other armyworms, the fall armyworm does not leave the plant to hide in the soil during the day; they feed continuously. After consuming all the food available, they begin crawling in great numbers into adjoining fields.

Usually, only one damaging generation to winter grazing in the fall occurs. However, after cold weather has passed, infestations of armyworms may occur in early spring grazing fields.

They thrive in cool, damp weather, but not freezing weather.

Several insecticides are recommended for armyworms attacking forage and pasture crops, reports Dr. Harris. Dylox and Sevin are probably two of the safest, with no time limitations on grazing.

Other recommended materials include malathion, methyl parathion and ethyl parathion; these have grazing restrictions. Observe all label restrictions and limitations.

For more information, call your Extension county agent's office for Information Sheet 722, "Control of Insects Attacking Forage and Pasture Crops."

Hancock Scout reservation Slidell camp handle 1,456

A total of 1,456 Boy Scouts and leaders from 94 troops spent a week or more this summer at Camp Salmen and the Salmen Scout Reservation, according to R. Alden Penderly, president of the New Orleans Council.

In addition to the trained staff that ran the camping facilities at Slidell and in Hancock County this summer, Gerald Villars, director of support services, said that New Orleans Area Council operated Cub Scout Day Camps that attracted 1,052 boys between the ages of 8 and 11.

Villars said that high-adventure trips were taken by 3,470 Scouts, Explorers and Leaders, to Philmont, N.M., 12 other states and the Bahamas.

Scout camps feature a broad Boy Scout program including swimming, boating, field sports, hiking, and camping skills. "The camp program is one of our key methods of achieving Scouting's objective," Villars said. "It meets more of the purposes of Scouting than any other single feature."
